History

The first Kemp Passage At Arms was held in 2005. The event was created by a group of medieval combat enthusiasts who wanted to create a more realistic and immersive experience than what was available at other tournaments. The tournament quickly gained popularity and has since become one of the most prestigious events in the medieval combat world.

Format

The Kemp Passage At Arms is a three-day event. The first day is dedicated to practice and training. The second and third days are the actual tournament. The tournament is divided into a number of different categories, including individual combat, team combat, and mounted combat.

The individual combat categories are further divided into three skill levels: novice, intermediate, and advanced. The team combat categories are divided into two skill levels: novice and advanced. The mounted combat category is open to all skill levels.

Weapons and Armor

The combatants at the Kemp Passage At Arms use a variety of period-appropriate weapons and armor. The most common weapons are swords, axes, and spears. The most common types of armor are chain mail and plate armor.

All of the weapons and armor used at the tournament are carefully inspected to ensure that they meet safety standards. The combatants are also required to wear a minimum amount of padding under their armor.

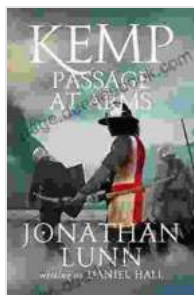

Safety

Safety is a top priority at the Kemp Passage At Arms. The tournament is supervised by a team of experienced safety officers. The safety officers are responsible for ensuring that the combatants follow the rules and that they are not injured.

The combatants are also required to sign a waiver before they participate in the tournament. The waiver states that the combatants are aware of the risks involved in the tournament and that they assume all responsibility for their own safety.

The Kemp Passage At Arms Arrows of Albion is a unique and exciting event that provides a glimpse into the world of medieval combat. The tournament is a great way to learn about medieval history and culture. It is also a great way to experience the thrill of battle.
